A close-up, artistic photograph of two champagne flutes and a bottle neck. The glasses are filled with a golden liquid, likely champagne, which is covered in a dense layer of fine bubbles. The bottle neck is visible in the background, also containing the same bubbly liquid. The entire scene is set against a dark background, with numerous small, golden droplets and bubbles suspended in the air, creating a sense of movement and celebration. The lighting is warm and focused on the liquid, highlighting its texture and the effervescence. The composition is framed by thin, golden lines in the corners.
